

ENGAGING. ENERGIZING. TRANSFORMING.

Hello there!

Thank you so much for your interest in my message, and I'm so glad we can stay in touch. My hope is to provide you with helpful information to keep you on track with your goals and to inspire and challenge you through my stories.

I'm excited to announce my newly-designed website and two new employees, Caroline Cunningham and Lindsey Smith. I'm also thrilled to say that my book, Life at Performance Level, has been named a national best-seller! If you haven't had a chance to pick up a copy yet, use the code FREESHIP on my website to receive free shipping.

This month, I'd like to focus on how to bring about positive changes in your life. You're writing your script, so there's no need to be afraid to add some lines or cut some scenes. To get started:

- Write Your Script: The scripts we write will determine the lives we live and lead. Sit quietly by yourself and write your life script. How do you want your script to read?
- Cast Your Show: Think about the six or eight people you surround yourself with. Do they make your show better or worse? Don't hesitate to write out the people that drag you off the stage and into the darkness.
- Be Response-able: As the director of your life, you're responsible for what happens on your stage. Respond by stopping and thinking before you act. Listen with new ears and fresh eyes.

To keep the inspiration coming, follow my blog to Live the Dream. Take a glance at my Upcoming Events to the right and keep an eye out for me as I travel to cities near you. If I'm in your area, please let me know so we can connect!

"Are there things that you do, habits that you know you need to change? Whatever it is, you need to know that it is not too late to change your script."
- Curtis Zimmerman
